

J.S. Bach - Church Cantatas BWV 30

Part 1: Chorus - Recit (B) - Aria (B) - Recit (A) - Aria (A) - Chorale.
 Part 2: Recit (B) - Aria (B) - Recit (S) - Aria (S) - Recit (T) - Chorus.
 Part 1 presents salvation as an accomplished fact, recalling the canticle (Benedictus) of Zechariah, father of John the Baptist, in the Gospel reading. Part 2 presents the theme of sanctification—the promise lived out in the present. The movements are often fashionable in their dance-like forms. Nevertheless, they still suit their new, sacred texts.
 Movement 1 parodies 30a/1. See side note for more.)
 •Rejoice in Zion's tents, O redeemed multitude! (30/1).
 Meredith Little and Natalie Jenne call this movement "gavotte-like." See "Dance and the Music of J. S. Bach" (2001), 223. With a poetic rhyme scheme of ABCCB, it is structured as a 5-part rondo, each section having 32 measures: ABAB'A.
 The A section is in binary form with periodic phrases, modulating from the tonic to the dominant and back to the tonic.

Feast of St. John the Baptist: June 24 (BWV 167, 7, 30)

*Is. 40:1–5 (A voice crying in the wilderness)

*Lk. 1:57–80 (Birth of John the Baptist and song of Zacharias)

Librettist: probably Picander (Christian Friedrich Henrici)

BWV 30 is a parody of BWV 30a, which has a secular text by Picander. Dürr notes it is idiosyncratic that even the recitative texts parody the original texts, though Bach did not avail himself of the opportunity to re-use the music. See Dürr/Jones 693.

To see the parallel meters and rhyme schemes of the recitatives in the 2 versions, see Petzoldt 3:150–57.

This movement is fashionably dance-like in its syncopated rhythm with pizzicato accompaniment, triplets, as well as binary form (with repeats) in the ritornello. See Dürr/Jones, 693. In the original model, Fortune promises pleasure and happiness to the new owner of the Wiederau estate. Here, the music depicts the divine shepherd's call to his gamboling (but disoriented) sheep. Biblical passages related to Christ's call include Matthew 11:28-30, 22:1-22.

Dal Segno.

A simple 4-part setting of a chorale connects thematically to the foregoing depiction of John the Baptist as a voice in the wilderness calling people to repentance (referenced in the day's readings). The connection with the previous movement is also made clear musically in that the chorale continues in the same key. The movement has no counterpart in the original model, which continues without pause. Since Bach writes the present work in two parts, the chorale serves to conclude Part 1 (performed before the sermon in the Leipzig liturgy). Martin Petzoldt notes that the choice of chorale stanza was especially appropriate since the cantata was repeated in the afternoon Vespers service at St. Nicholas, where the sermon expounded the Epistle of the day (Isaiah 40:1-5), "A voice crying in the wilderness". See "Bach Kommentar" 3:156, 165.

Martin Petzoldt notes the many sighing motives in this chorale setting (compared to Bach's other settings of this tune) and suggests that they may have been prompted by the reference to the Savior's calls/cries (set as "loving" duets of 3rds and 6ths) in the previous movement. See "Bach Kommentar" 3:165.

30/7. Recitativo. (Newly composed) Individual's response to God who fulfilled his promise. The text alludes to Zechariah's canticle in the Gospel lesson: God remembering to honor his covenant. (30/7).

Oboes play parallel 6ths and 3rds in a cross figure over 5 repeated low bass notes leading emphatically to a strong beat. Chromatic harmonies with sharps ("Kreuze"). Since it was performed at the Eucharist, it may depict God keeping his covenant at the cross (i.e., the new covenant).

See "Bach Kommentar" 3:166.

30/8. Aria. (Parody of 30a/7.) • Forsaking what God hates; loving what he loves (30/8). In the secular model, Fate sings in affectionate encouragement to the patron and his estate. Petzoldt notes that the new text may require a more vigorous musical execution.
